Methodology. Statistics are computed from normalized specifications of catalogued products (subcategories included). The typical range is the middle half of the market — a quarter of products sit below it and a quarter above — which describes the ordinary article better than the extremes: a category may hold both a 12 g separation nut and a 120 kg dispenser. “Stated by” is how many catalogued products carry the parameter at all; rows marked thin rest on fewer than twelve and should be read as an indication. Prices are supplier-published list prices converted to USD at fixed rates (EUR 1.08, GBP 1.27); most space hardware is priced on request, so price coverage is partial by nature. Lead times are parsed from supplier-stated availability. License: CC BY 4.0 — free to cite with a link. Cite as “NewSpace Market Intelligence, 2026”.

About NewSpace Market

NewSpace Market is an open catalogue of the satellite supply chain: spacecraft hardware, subsystems, ground segment, launch services and the companies behind them — in one place, comparable, with the source of every figure a click away.

FOR BUYERS

Search by specification rather than by brand, compare parts across suppliers, and send one request for quotation to several of them at once. Free, no account needed to browse.

WHERE THESE NUMBERS COME FROM

Every figure in this report is computed from catalogue records at the moment of publication — no surveys, no extrapolation. The same figures are live on the site, and each report is reissued monthly, with past editions kept.
